THE MOUTHS OF CANNON

Every week sees thousands more of Uncle Sam's soldier boys landed at New York and hurried away to some training camp for mustering out.

Daily new faces, fresh from the front, greet you.

And you are glad to see every one of them.

One goes to sleep these nights with an entirely different feeling from that of six months ago. The old harrowing dread is gone; there are no more horrible nightmarish dreams; no more fear of what the dark may bring forth.

The mouths of cannon no longer threaten your boy.

And the million or more dough-boys who are still in France will hear no more the whine of shrapnel, the staccato echoes of machine guns, the crash of high explosive shells. War's alarms are over for them.

But it cost Uncle Sam something near $30,000,000,000 before he had his ponderous pile driving war machine in working order. Before it assumed the proportions that convinced the Hun that further fighting was folly.

Not all of that cost has been paid. Several billions of dollars will be needed to square accounts. Just how much only Uncle Sam can approximate. And Uncle Sam must raise it.

Part of it must come through the Victory-Liberty loan.

You will be asked shortly to make your contribution in bond purchases. And it may be that you will feel that you have done your bit.

But before you turn the Victory Loan salesman away consider this:

Just how much does it mean to you to have those cannon stilled? Just how much to have your boy at home, safe and sound? Just how much to have the world at peace? Just how much to have conditions coming back to normal?

And make your purchase accordingly.

You'll buy; never fear.

BAKERISM

Secretary Baker continues to run true to form. After giving full publicity to General Crowder's defense of the American army court martial system which was recently placed under attack by General—no, Lieutenant Colonel—Ansell, he now announces that Ansell's reply is to be kept secret, though Ansell himself has asked that as a matter of fairness it be made public. Baker's position is that the reply is none of the public's business. The public must be content with an exparte statement from a representative of the military clique. The attitude of the secretary of war is a gross insult to the American public. It is a cheap imitation of Teutonic militarism imposed on the citizens of a free country.

But Mr. Baker is not only insulting; he is foolish with the constitutional foolishness of the confirmed gackist who flunders about out of his depth. He makes every one ask: What is this thing the war department is trying to hide: what is this abuse which must be kept from the knowledge of the world? And he causes suspicion and surmises which perhaps go beyond the actuality. Ultimately the course he pursues will bring about a searching and exhaustive and hostile inquiry. Indeed with a Republican Congress once in session that inquiry is not likely to be long delayed and when it is undertaken, we may be sure Colonel Ansell's statement will get full publicity.—Detroit Free Press.

BUILDING PROSPECTS

A few local property owners who asked for bids recently on the erection of contemplated houses were so badly discouraged when they were furnished the figures that all thoughts of building were at once abandoned. The bids submitted were so far beyond the ability of the lot owners that in some cases they deemed it more advisable to buy houses, while others who were contemplating erecting tenement houses gave up the project entirely.

This is rather a discouraging situation. The need of houses, moderately priced houses within the means of the wage earner, are greatly in demand at the present time, but apparently they are not to be found. What might be termed a "moderately priced" house hardly exists at the present time. The price on materials, as well as the prevailing high cost of labor, all tend to dampen the ardor of those who would build if prospects were more encouraging.

However, there may be a silver lining to this apparently dark prospect in that the continuation of high prices will give the people a new angle of vision as to cost of building materials, and that if houses are to be erected, the prevailing prices will not be a detriment. If we are to remain on the high plane on which we are now traveling, of necessity we must pay more for everything that contributes to our comforts and our necessities.

AMERICAN BOLSHEVISM

A great deal has been said lately about the duty of organized society to "cure Bolshevism by removing its causes," says an exchange. An excellent idea, this—provided those who employ it know, first, what Bolshevism is; and second, what is the cause of it. At this moment several official investigations of the Bolshevist propaganda are in progress, or have been ordered, in this country. No one, we believe, has admitted that Bolshevism, at all events in the strict Russian sense of the word, has yet made any active manifestation of itself in the United States; but a considerable amount of propaganda in its behalf has been recognized, and is in lively progress. It is also the fashion to describe any demonstration which is accompanied by violence or by inflammatory appeals against the public authority, as Bolshevism, where as much of this sort of disturbance is as old as all law, all society, and is properly classified in the current speech of America as "pure cussedness."

MAY A LEAGUE VOTED DISCRIMINATE?

Washington, April 7.—The Republican Publicity Association through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington Headquarters:

"That Canada contemplates an entire revision of her tariff in the very near future was made public some days ago, and it was stated that Great Britain will come in for preferential treatment possibly even more pronounced than that which she is now receiving from her richest dependency under the present Canadian law. If Canada and Great Britain choose to exchange commodities on a free trade basis, as between themselves, that is the business of no nation. It is a family matter, ordinarily.

"That further discriminations in favor of British goods will have more or less effect in curtailing our sales to Canada, is to be expected. That is the purpose of Canada's dual tariff policy. Our trade with our northern neighbor has made seven-league strides since the European war began, both in imports from and exports to that country. During the calendar year 1913, our imports from Canada totaled $142,000,000 and our exports to Canada totaled $403,500,000. Last year imports totaled $452,000,000 and exports $887,000,000 much of the latter being partly due to war orders and partly to inability to purchase freely in the British market. Canadian competition in our market for the next few years will be chiefly in agricultural products wheat especially.

"When we come to consider Canada's tariff policy in connection with the proposed league of nations, however, we are confronted with a proposition which seems inconsistent: Article 7 of the league, covering admission of States to the league, requires the assent of not less than two-thirds of the States represented in the body of delegates and shall be limited to fully self-governing countries, including dominions and colonies. This of course, covers the four great self-governing dominions of Great Britain—Canada, New Zealand, South Africa and Australia. Hence, the English body of delegates would have five votes to one vote of any other country. We have the word of Andrew Bonar Law, government leader in the British House of Commons, that no agreement would be entered into a Paris which would interfere with the full control of the United Kingdom or the dominions over their own customs duties. And Article 21 of the league makes provision through the instrumentality of the league to secure and maintain freedom of transit and equitable treatment for the commerce of all States members of the league." Here we arrive at the astonishing proposal that Canada shall have voting power in the league, but may discriminate in favor of British trade, while it seems certain that any tariff which Britain may adopt will contain discriminations in favor of her four self-governing dominions. And again we have Bonar Law's word for it that England is to return to the protective policy and that "imperial preference would be put into effect at the earliest possible moment." Further, he says: "It is not too much to say that we would not have gained the victory but for the help of the dominions. Therefore, any measure increasing the productive power and man power of the dominions is a good thing for Britain as well as the empire." And our "total export trade" to the four British dominions last year was valued at $1,032,000,000 or one-sixth our entire foreign sales.

"How would the people of the United States like the idea of empowering five members of the league to 'recommend,' or 'advise' or 'decide' with respect to our tariff matters, yet able to effect favorable discriminations as among themselves? Why does Mr. Wilson approve that proposal?

Director General Hines refuses to buy steel for the railroads at the price fixed by government officials. And as a consequence the situation is very much up in the air.

"THE SPIRIT OF MEMORIALS"

As the spring blossoms into summer we feel, some of us, the absence of those dear ones who have passed to "the beyond." We miss their laughter, their kindnesses, their caresses. Ought we not give actual expression to the loving remembrance in which they are held?

The custom of marking their resting places is as old and as beautiful as the old, old world itself.

We cannot honor our loved ones more, nor perpetuate their memory more effectively, than by the erection of a monument. Properly carved, by a master artisan, such a memorial is a lasting tribute to our affection for them.

Is there not some one whose memory deserves this recognition from you?

Diversity of opinion naturally exists in Monessen because of the action of the Westmoreland county courts in refusing to grant any retail liquor license for the year beginning May 1st. Verdure on China's Great Wall.
Trees and shrubbery planted in the soil that has been accumulating for hundreds of years on the great wall of China are in thriving condition, some of them having grown to a height of 12 to 18 feet. This method of beautifying the great wall was an outgrowth of the movement for the reforestation of the country started some time ago with government sanction under the direction of foreign experts. The driveway on the great wall is considered very much improved with the addition of trees.

Each Seeks His Kind.

Thrust an Emerson into any Concord, and his pungent presence will penetrate the entire region. Soon all who come within the radius of his life respond to his presence as flowers and trees respond with boughs, brilliant and fragrant, to the sunshine. After a little, each Emerson stands girt about with Hawthornes, Whittiers, Holmeses and Lowells.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Real Pioneer.

One of the first white men and in all probability the first British subject to make his abode in territory comprised within the boundaries of the province of New Brunswick, Canada, was John Gyles, who was carried from the southern British colonies to the wilderness of the valley of the St. John river by marauding bands of Indians.

No Friends Like Old Friends.

Esteem of great powers, or available qualities newly discovered, may embroider a day or week, but a friendship of twenty years is interwoven with the texture of life. A friend may be found and lost, but an old friend can never be found, and nature has provided that he cannot easily be lost.—Samuel Johnson.

Shakespeare Law Unto Himself.

A correspondent wonders how such a phrase as "piping time of peace" could originate. One might think it referred to the Indian's peace pipe, but Shakespeare was rather unfamiliar with the customs of American aborigines. However, Shakespeare did what he pleased with English language.

First American Balloon Ascension.

January 9 is the anniversary of the first balloon ascension in this country. It was made in Philadelphia in 1793, and it is interesting in view of the rapid strides in aeronautics made in the past few years. Even twenty-five years ago the idea of a dirigible airship was largely a dream.

Must Be Progression.

The moral law of the universe is progress. Every generation that passes idly over the earth without adding to that progress remains unimproved upon the register of humanity, and the succeeding generation tramples its ashes as dust.—Mazzini.

Mountain Laurel.

The fact that mountain laurel blooms on three great national holidays. Memorial day, Flag day and Fourth of July, is one reason why the National Federation of Women's clubs advocates that flower for the national emblem.

Life Much as One Makes It.

Every day that is born into this world comes like a burst of music and sings itself all day through, and thou shalt make of it a dance, a dirge, or a life march, as thou wilt.—Carlyle.

Fir Turpentine.

Copenhagen engineers are experimenting with the production of turpentine from fir trees, the roots and leaves being used as well as the trunks.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Nothing Is Impossible.

"A creature of marvel is this thing called man," observed the facetious philosopher. "He can ride in an automobile and run into debt at the same time."

What Hurts.

Sometimes a man doesn't mind being henpecked a little, just so the chickens don't laugh at him.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A lot of us think that freedom of speech is all right until the other fellow starts taking advantage of it.

Must Take the Risk.

Do not expect the ship to return loaded with precious treasures without being exposed to dangers.

Explained.

Said the facetious fellow: "A cynic is merely a philosopher with chronic indigestion."

"Prince Charlie."

Charles Edward, the grandson of James II of England, sometimes called Bonnie Prince Charlie, was known as the young pretender, son of James II. At the time of the rising of 1745 he was at one time very near entering London, but the fatality that hurried the Stuarts overwhelmed him. He retreated to Scotland, where he and his army were utterly routed at Culloden. With him the direct line of the Stuarts became extinct. He died January 31, 1788.

Piston Rings.

Piston rings, of which millions are used yearly, are shaped by centrifugal action from molten metal in the special machine of DeLavaud. In tests at Columbia university, it has been shown that these rings are not only made faster than by other methods, but are actually stronger and more resilient than rings of the same chemical composition cast in sand. The microscope reveals a more uniform and finer structure.

Know Only Two Seasons.

There are but two seasons—the wet and the dry—at the equator in Africa. The former (summer) lasts eight months, with the thermometer averaging from 110 to 125 degrees Fahrenheit. During the dry or "cold" season of four months the thermometer stands at about 70 degrees. It is then that the natives, who have been hived in their bamboo huts so long by the rain, desert their towns and set out for the forests and jungles.

Pests Wiped Out.

Recently a government hunter shot two male wolves which had killed 150 sheep and seven colts on two Wyoming ranches, while another trapper bagged a pair of old wolves which had a record of killing $4,000 worth of livestock a year. A third trapper destroyed 35 coyotes and 2 bobcats in one month, using six horses and 200 traps over a trap line varying from 50 to 100 miles in length.

Called a Camisole.

The invariable subject was being discussed in a car between two men. Said the first: "I get on with everything but the meat, and that's mostly too tough for me to manage." "The meat's all right at our house," rejoined the second; "they learned my girl cookery at school, and she gets the meat quite tender in a French cooking pot they call a camisole."

Sun Power Beats Coal, Is Claim.

The Philadelphia inventor of a sun-power engine, which is said to be working successfully in Egypt, has figured that it would be necessary to cover but 20,250 square miles of the Sahara desert with the engines to obtain as much power as the world's coal supplied in 1909.—Baltimore American.

Hint for Gardeners.

Buddy was helping work in the garden, when grandpa told him to pull some radishes for supper; the ground was hard, and Buddy had great difficulty in trying to pull them; finally he gave it up, and going to grandpa said: "I wish you'd planted 'em upside down, grandpa; then they wouldn't be so hard to pull."

Powerful Light.

The amount of light given by a single lightning flash is sufficient to illuminate an area two miles square with an average illumination of one candle. To produce such an illumination, an eminent electrician estimates the expenditure of 13,000 horse power for one second would be required.—Indianapolis News.

Not Playing Fair.

WOMEN ARE BOOSTING IT YOU CAN'T FOOL THEM

Once you have shown them and got their confidence they will stick through thick and thin to what they know and believe is a good thing.

Hundreds of women in our city are going around today with joy in their hearts and a new lease on life and health were before each day was one long "nervous drag of misery."

As one woman expressed it, "I'm not the work you do, it's the way you feel that makes the druggery, you can't get ahead when you go to bed at 10, too tired to sleep and get up at 6, no morning half dead. Believe me I know, I certainly was a nervous wreck, every task a load, no ambition, thin, haggard and pale, an old woman before my time. Look at me now. Work is a pleasure. I am just bubbling over with good spirits, the picture of health, cheeks rosy and full of the color that only ironized blood can give, while my phosphate-nerved nerves are as steady as a clock, nothing worries me, I sleep like a top and feel like a girl of sixteen. Take it from me, I want Phosphated Iron to get all of the credit, too much cannot be said in its praise, and all my friends are boosting it."

There is no need of any man or woman going around with that tired all-in feeling or any form of nervousness, if they take a brace and stand up to a package of Phosphated Iron it will spruce you up and make you feel like a live wire once more, so get busy. Special Notes. To insure doctors and their patients getting the Genuine Phosphated Iron we have put in capsules only, so do not allow dealers to sell you pills or tablets.
